A message from...

Troy Harrison

Head of Accessible Acting Program

"When asked to run a one-off acting workshop for a group of students from Bus Stop Films, I jumped at the opportunity. By the end of the two hours, it was very clear that the workshop should only be the beginning.

Bus Stop Films runs an incredible program, teaching people living with a disability what goes on behind the camera. Partnering and collaborating with them to create a program that teaches what goes on in front of the camera or on a stage was a natural fit.

The Accessible Acting Program was designed in consultation with three students from Bus Stop: Gerard O'Dwyer, Audrey O'Connor, and Chris Bunton. They shared their lived experiences and expressed what they would want from an acting program.

The AAP is an exceptional program, and the results extend far beyond the creative journey the students go on. The growth and confidence of each participant, both in the rehearsal room and in their everyday lives, are inspiring to witness.

The ongoing partnership with Bus Stop Films and ACA, as well as the drive to grow and expand the Accessible Acting Program in the future, is truly exciting. I am proud and honoured to head the program."

Tracey Corbin-Matchett

CEO, Bus Stop Films

Bus Stop Films was thrilled to partner with Actors Centre Australia on the development of the Accessible Acting Program. Creativity is a powerful medium to improve confidence, independence, literacy and social skills. All aspects that we have seen fruit in the lives of people living with disability through our Accessible Filmmaking Program and delighted to extend our expertise in this approach through Australia's leading acting school. We cannot wait to see the participants of the Accessible Acting Program learning their craft with the brilliant team and within the supportive environment offered by ACA.

The Accessible Acting Program was piloted with assistance of an Information, Linkages and Capacity Building - Social and Community Participation grant from the federal government's Department of Human Services.

Messages from Some of Our Ambassadors:

"I love my job, the people I do it with and the industry that supports it. I feel so lucky to be an actor. Actors Centre Australia was my training ground. I knew so little of what was required before I got there and I left with a more open mind, a better work ethic, a larger imagination, more empathy and all the other tools I have needed so far. I'm proud to have put the work in there to emerge an employable, working graduate."

- Harriet Dyer

"My time at ACA was a huge experience for me. It laid a strong foundation for my future learning (the learning never ends) and the way I conduct myself professionally, whether I'm working here or overseas. Culture is everything, and I carry it with me wherever I go. My experiences at The Actors Centre helped me set a very strong personal culture as an actor. Over three decades of service to the arts demonstrates Actors Centre's longevity."

Cancellations and Withdrawals

ACA is a fee for service offering and our Terms and Conditions reflect withdrawals or cancellations fees that are applicable. You can find our terms and conditions below.

Please be aware that students who are enrolled with Actors Centre Australia Accessible Acting Program are enrolled for the full 20-week program and after the first lesson of Term 1 are liable for the full program fees. Students are required to pay for the full term. Being absent from the term doesn't negate the fees.

We ask that should you not be able to attend a class, or you change your mind that Actors Centre Australia be notified. Each class builds upon the last and so if you miss too many classes it will be hard to catch up, it also makes it difficult for scene partners and the rest of the class when rehearsing scenes, so too many missed classes may result in being excluded from the end of program performance.

Commitment levels need to be high, and we like to see a student's commitment reflected in high attendance levels.

Please make sure you are familiar with our terms and conditions and understand the withdrawal period. If you have any questions that you raise them with our ACA Admin team:

info@actorscentreaustralia.com.au
